

Best Practices with ClassFlow: Using Agreement Polls for Debates

Polling is a fantastic way to gather formative data from connected students. Please view our resources on polling for more information. The Scale poll offers three options, and the Agreement poll is perfect for supporting academic discussions and debates.

When you initiate an Agreement poll, students receive the following options: Strongly Agree, Somewhat Agree, Neutral, Somewhat Disagree, and Strongly Disagree.

Results populate in real time and are anonymous by default. To use for a debate, after students submit their initial opinion, use the Pause button on the Teacher Panel to pause the poll.

Students can make evidence-based arguments while the poll is paused. Once arguments are complete, click the Pause button again to resume the poll. Students can then re-cast their votes and the class can view results changing in real time. Repeat as needed.

Note: Some teachers find it preferable to maximize the teacher card by double-clicking it. This conceals the bar graph, so students are not swayed by their peers' opinions.

Follow us on Twitter @LearnPromethean, subscribe to our Promethean Video YouTube channel, sign up to hear from us, and visit our website to learn more.

